It must have been accomplished at Worcester. Or-in the railway train, he slowly added. I have heard of such things. You had better keep counsel at present as to the stolen note, Mr. Rymer. I will until you give me leave to speak. All I can do to assist in the discovery is heartily at Squire Todhetley s service. I d transport these rogues, for my part. We carried our report home-that the thing had not been, and could not have been, effected on the Timberdale side, unless old Lee was to be suspected: which was out of the question. Time went on, and it grew into more of a mystery than ever. Not as to the fact itself or the stolen note, for all that was soon known high and low. The Worcester office exonerated itself from suspicion, as did the railway letter-van. The van let off its resentment in a little private sneering: but[.].
