Not illustrated. 1851 Excerpt: . had if they are grown under north walls, so as to retard their flowering and to lower their excitability. It will also be found that the gradual thaw which takes place when the vernal sun has no access is a powerful safeguard against the consequences of being frozen; while, on the contrary, the rapid elevation of temperature which occurs in a sunny border is invariably productive of bad consequences. The Chinese and Japanese are said to reckon their varieties of Moutans by hundreds, as we do our Roses. It is not improbable, now that the single and very slightly double kinds are beginning to establish themselves in Europe, that we too shall have the same dominion over them as over Camellias and Chrysanthems. The double varieties sometimes seed; there is nothing whatever to prevent the single kinds from doing so; and it is only necessary...
